

REJECTION OF EXPERTS WILL HASTEN CLOSE

Is Now Believed That Case Will Go To Jury Tuesday

DAYTON, Tenn., July 17.—(By Associated Press)—The briefest session yet of the court trying the Scopes case today brought the stormiest hour of the trial and forecast the end of the "evolution test" soon. Judge John T. Raulston, by excluding proposed testimony from an array of scientists, shortened the trial by days. The court's decision, announced at the close of the day, was that the testimony of the defense, sharp words being directed at the court soon after he had read his opinion.

With their experts precluded from taking the witness stand, the defense will place affidavits in the record setting forth what the zoologists, biologists, pathologists, and others would have said had they been allowed to speak. To permit the preparation of these statements, adjournment was taken until Monday morning. The defense was not expected to offer other witnesses and after filing of the scientific statements, arguments would be in order.

It was considered probable that the case would reach the jury Tuesday. The first flare-up from the defense table came immediately after the decision against testimony of scientists was read.

Arthur G. Hayes asked that an exception be noted added: "It is contrary to every element of Anglo-Saxon procedure and jurisprudence to refuse to admit evidence as to what evolution is and what it means and what the Bible is and what it means."

Attorney General Stewart then declared that in the name of the state he objected to the manner in which the defense exception was stated, stating that he considered it a reflection on the court.

"Well, it doesn't hurt this court," Judge Raulston said. "I think there is no danger of it hurting the court," replied the attorney general.

"There is no danger of it hurting us," was Mr. Darrow's contribution.

"No, you are already hurt as much as you can be hurt," from Stewart.

"Don't worry about us," replied Darrow.

"The state of Tennessee doesn't rule the world yet. With the hope of enlightening the court as a whole, I want to say that the scientists probably will not correct the record as to what evolution is and I want to explain what does mean, as starting with a low form of life and finally reaching man."

"We all have dictionaries," said Stewart.

"I don't think the court has one," rejoined Darrow.

Judge Raulston in his opinion ruling the experts out had said: "I desire to suggest that I believe evolutionists should at least show man the consideration to substitute the word 'ascend' for 'descent'."

Will Go Into Records

The exchange between Darrow and Stewart shifted to a discussion of the proper method of getting the testimony of the scientists into the record of the case. Defense counsel submitted that witnesses should be heard in the presence of the court and absence of the jury.

The attorney general submitted that sufficient testimony should be permitted in the record to enable the supreme court to pass upon the proposition, but argued that no long drawn out exceptions should be taken.

COOLIDGE HOPES TO AVERT COAL STRIKE

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 17. (By Associated Press)—While hoping that a strike in the anthracite fields will be averted, President Coolidge and Secretary Davis today determined upon a plan to use in case of an emergency.

Secretary Davis called at White Court to confer with the executive on pending development of labor problems prior to a visit to Europe. The conversation centered on the anthracite coal field wage agreement now pending.

Mr. Davis declared that though two representatives of the department of labor were taking part in the negotiations if a strike developed the government was ready to take a hand.

What part the government would play in the possible strike was not disclosed.

The attitude of President Coolidge was not disclosed.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT DETERMINED TO END MOROCCAN WARFARE

Attacks of Riffian Leader Have Recently Been Very Short.

PARIS, July 17. (By Associated Press)—That the French government is resolved to put an end to the Moroccan war and in order to do so is prepared to provide men and material without stint is generally held to be the explanation for the visit of an army officer of the rank and prestige of Marshal Pétain to the seat of war.

The official view appears to be that Abd-El-Krim must be knocked out, that a victory on points would be worse than useless. Three months will see the end of the campaign season in Morocco, and it is declared that the operations against the rebellious tribesmen ought to be accomplished by that time.

Marshal Pétain, who reached Morocco late today is a master organizer. He will go over the whole situation in detail with Marshal Lyautey, the French governor-general and General Naulin, the newly appointed commander in chief of the Moroccan forces and decide exactly what is needed. He will then return to Paris and see that it is supplied.

Fez, French Morocco, July 17. (AP)—Abd-El-Krim's offensive toward Fez is growing more intense, but chiefly in political sense. His plan is indicated from all quarters in the last few days, is to sweep toward the capital on a wave of insurrection among the tribes saving his military strength for crushing blows.

His attacks recently have been short and sharp and on a small scale, compared with his apparent forces.

Abd-El-Krim's men are expanding their process of fomenting discontent among the tribes in the area north of Fez. Occasionally they take hostages and go thru a series of executions to show the tribes still loyal to the French that it is safer to follow Abd-El-Krim than to fight him.

PARALYZED SON TELLS JURY OF POISONING

CROWN POINT, July 17. (By Associated Press)—In a voice that the nearest juror could scarcely hear, David Cunningham, paralyzed and on a stretcher in court today told the jury of his illness of poison from which resulted the indictment and present murder trial of his mother, Anna Cunningham, for the fatal poisoning of another son, Mrs. Cunningham provided the most pathetic and dramatic note of the entire trial at the close of the young man's testimony when she sobbed out a denial of crimes she is alleged to have committed as she bent over the stretcher.

David appeared as the court's witness because of his refusal to testify against his mother. His examination had to do almost entirely with the history of his illness which left him paralyzed and still near death after four months of care by a Chicago physician. He had become ill, he admitted, after eating an apple and a dish of beans in a lunch his mother had prepared for him.

McALISTER, Okla., July 17. (By Associated Press)—"Elephant Red" Kule believed to be the only man in the United States who ever served time for stealing a herd of elephants was released from the state penitentiary here today when his two year term expired.

The circus with which Kule traveled experienced financial difficulties. The partners agreed to separate and each to take a share of the animals and equipment.

Kule went with one of them and a short time later decided to steal the elephants. They were driven to a point 18 miles away from where they were quartered when officers arrested Kule and returned the animals.

BOOTLEG RING IS UNCOVERED IN NEW YORK

Shipped in Trunks—Mailed Keys to Customers

NEW YORK, July 17. (By Associated Press)—A bootleg ring operating thruout New York and the entire middle-west by shipping liquor by express in traveling trunks was broken up today, prohibition agents said, after the arrest of seven men and one woman and the seizure of books and papers containing the names of addresses of clients and showing that approximately 20,000 orders had been filled.

Keys to the trunks, according to the agents, were sent to the customers by mail, and the empty trunks were then returned by express. More than forty solicitors went thruout the middle-west taking orders for liquor. United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner said. The eight persons arrested on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws were arraigned before United States Commissioner Cotter who issued a warrant for the raid on the Broadway apartment where they were found.

Mr. Buckner, declaring that the raid had uncovered "the biggest bootleg ring since Mannie Kessler's prosecution," said that a federal grand jury investigation would be asked Monday.

MINERS INSIST ON LIST OF SALARIES PAID TO OFFICIALS

Operators at First Refuse But Later Consent to Furnish.

ATLANTIC, N. J., July 17. (By Associated Press)—Anthracite operators, dispersing tonight for the week end adjournment said they were going home for "more adding machines" to handle the figures and statistics the miners had begun to require.

Miners today closed the week's partly by requesting the mine owners to list the salaries which according to the diggers, were being paid to coal company presidents, directors and "high priced lawyers." The miners said they wished to place these figures in evidence in consideration of the labor cost of anthracite production, a cost which operators say should "come down."

At first the mine owners gave the miners to understand they did not deem the request worthy of consideration. Later, however, they reconsidered and assurance was finally given that the information would be forthcoming when the joint scale subcommittee reconvenes Tuesday afternoon.

Philip Murray, international vice-president of the miners' association tonight progress of the negotiations was being retarded by the operators' "propaganda" which he said, was seeking to use the absence of President John Lewis to discredit the remainder of the miners' negotiators.

"The sub-committee of the anthracite mine workers," said Mr. Murray, "exercises the same authority to negotiate a wage agreement with the anthracite coal operators as if Mr. Lewis were present."

Shepherd Is Loser In McClintock Will Case

CHICAGO, July 17. (By Associated Press)—William Darling Shepherd, recently acquitted of the murder of William Nelson McClintock, millionaire orphan and his ward today lost his first legal skirmish to gain possession of the million dollar estate left him by McClintock's will.

Probate Judge Henry Horner refused to admit to probate the will, leaving to Shepherd all of the estate except an $8,000 annuity to Miss Isabelle Pope, young McClintock's fiancée. Probation was refused on the grounds of a "presumption of undue influence."

Judge Horner decided it was the duty of proponents of the will to disprove undue influence in the higher courts.

Immediately after the decision, the litigants—Shepherd, on the one side and nine Iowa cousins of McClintock and Miss Pope on the other—started a second contest over the administration of the estate. Attorneys for the contestants were unable to agree on an administrator and the hearing finally was continued until next Tuesday when it an agreement is not reached the court will name a custodian.

Attorneys for the contestants argued that Shepherd as the principal beneficiary had drawn up the will himself, that he had lived with young McClintock, and that two women employed in Shepherd's household, one of them unable to read, had witnessed the instrument. All of this, they contended, was irregular and showed undue influence. Judge Horner said that no undue influence had been proven but that while there was a presumption of such, it was the duty of the proponents to disprove this. Shepherd's attorneys intimated that an immediate appeal to the circuit court would be made.

LELAND IS AWARDED $10,000 AS DAMAGE IN SLANDER CHARGE

Case Aftermath of Leland's Divorce Suit Against Wife.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 17. (By Associated Press)—Albert R. Leland was awarded damages of $10,000 tonight by a jury in his $50,000 slander suit against E. J. Hartie, wealthy official of the Oak Park church of which Leland formerly was a parishioner.

The jury deliberated for a little more than three hours. The suit was the outgrowth of a divorce filed by Leland in March and the Rev. Carl D. Case, pastor of the Oak Park church which all the principals attended was named.

The divorce action came after Leland's wife, Mrs. Charlotte Leland, said that Dr. Case and she had been guilty of misconduct.

Mrs. Leland testified for her husband in the divorce action. During the investigation of the affair by the church, Hartie, a trustee, was a member of a committee which made an inquiry. Leland charged that Hartie had referred to him as the father of an illegitimate child, a rubber in a Turkish bath and as a man who once practiced medicine without a license.

LIFE IS SAVED BY PRESENCE OF MIND

CHICAGO, July 17. (By Associated Press)—One man is dead while the presence of mind of another saved his life, when a scaffold on which the two were working here today fell from the seventh floor of a building in the heart of the shopping district.

Crowds of pedestrians scattered when Harry Kunze came hurtling to the ground followed by the scaffold. Looking up the crowd saw Harold Krueger clinging to a rope at the fifth floor elevation. He had grasped the rope when it broke and fell 20 feet before being able to get a firm hold. He worked his way up slightly and swinging his body and arms swung himself into an open window of this floor.

Acid with which the men were cleaning the building is believed by the police to have eaten thru the rope suspending the ladder.

Effert's foster father, Harry Effert, Chicago real estate man arrived here today and demanded the "full penalty of the law" for his son.

Physicians attending the girls took issue with young Effert's story that he gave the girls poison. Doctors said the symptoms did not act like a certain poison.

OPERATOR SAW ROBERT SCOTT SHOOT MAURER

Says No Holdup Occurred—Telegraphs Gov. Small.

CHICAGO, July 17. (By Associated Press)—The story of James M. Ball, Detroit, telegraph operator that he was present in a Chicago drug store when Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, was killed and that Robert Scott, and not his brother Russell, fired the fatal shot was characterized as a "pure fable" by George E. Gorman, assistant state's attorney tonight.

"This fellow Ball seems to have an active imagination," Mr. Gorman said. "Except for Robert Scott, who took into custody everyone who was in the drug store when the shooting occurred, Ball was not among them. We never heard of Ball before and certainly would have had been present when the murder occurred."

DETROIT, Mich., July 17. (By Associated Press)—The Detroit Free Press tonight says that James M. Ball, local telegraph operator, tonight telegraphed Governor Len Small of Illinois that he was a witness to the shooting of Joseph Maurer in a Chicago drug store a year ago and that Robert and not Russell Scott was the murderer.

Ball, an operator for the Postal Telegraph company here, said he paid no attention to Scott's trial in Chicago as he seldom had time to read the newspapers. However, he saw a picture of Russell Scott in a newspaper here yesterday and immediately identified it as the likeness of one of the men who participated in the affair in which Maurer was killed.

Ball, who is a poor man, delayed some time before notifying Governor Small of the mistake, realizing that it would take him from his work and that his family might suffer if he quit work to testify.

Today, however, Ball decided to telegraph Scott's father that he had important evidence and asked Scott's father to come here. The older Mr. Scott placed the matter in the hands of an attorney.

This evening, receiving no word from Chicago, Ball telegraphed Governor Small that he would appear before the Illinois executive if wanted, will swear that Robert and not Russell is the slayer and that the shooting did not occur in a holdup, as the state alleged in Russell Scott's trial, but during an argument over a bill which the two brothers were trying to collect.

Ball was in the city hall drug store when the killing took place. He said that Robert tried to collect a bill from Maurer and that a heated argument took place.

"When Russell saw a fight might come, he stepped in and told his brother the sum was trivial to make such a fuss over and that they had better leave before someone got hurt. Robert refused however, and when Maurer made a motion as if to threaten him, he bent forward and fired several shots."

"I happened so quickly I don't know exactly how many shots were fired and where Robert Scott fired from. He did it so quickly I didn't get a clear view. But anyhow, Russell, the elder brother was standing with his hands to his sides and couldn't have done it."

Ball tonight said that he was in Chicago at the time of the shooting, working at the main office of the Postal Telegraph company. He lived at the Loyal Hotel in Clark street, opposite the Federal Building. He had gone to the drugstore to make a purchase. He heard an argument between the clerk and the Scotts over some money and

EMPLOYMENT IS LESS, FOOD PRICES INCREASE

WASHINGTON, July 17. (By Associated Press)—While employment and wages in manufacturing industries generally were declining in June, the bureau of labor statistics announced tonight the level of retail food prices was advancing.

On the basis of reports from 5,204 establishments, in 52 industries, the bureau found a decrease of 1.1 percent in the number of employees in June as compared with May of 3.1 percent in aggregate earnings, and of 2.1 percent in per capita earnings, the most marked decline since July 1924. These declines were due chiefly to curtailment in the automobile, boot and shoe, cotton goods, iron and steel industries.

The retail food index, with 100 representing the 1913 level of prices advanced, meanwhile, from 151.6 in May to 155.0 in June, 18 articles showing increases, 10 decreases and 15 no change. From June 15, 1924, to June 15, 1925 the average increase in retail food prices was placed at nine percent. All of the 51 representative cities from which reports were received showed general increases in June, ranging up to five percent at Denver.

PROHIBITIONISTS URGED ON ANDREWS TO FILL VACANCIES

Chairman of National Party Makes Public Recent Letter

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 17. (By Associated Press)—Dr. B. E. P. Pruch, of Harrisburg, National Prohibition party chairman, today made public a letter to General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, urging appointment of "friends of prohibition" to fill vacancies in the enforcement service.

"I am frank to say that I have been unable to convince myself that the 'acid test of enforcement,' inaugurated by the administration, is a genuine effort to make good," he wrote, "but do not mean for a moment to question your own sincerity as to your part in it. Considering the history of the department, considering the sale of the Overhill distillery for the enormous sum of $15,000,000 and considering the reported semi-official utterances of Senator Watson, that this effort is intended to see whether the people will stand for this enormous cost of 'acid' enforcement or whether they will agree to modify the Volstead act, I rather fear that it is impossible and secure modification of the law in the interest of the wets."

"I have long known the need of weeding out the appointment on the recommendation of politicians, of saloonkeepers, ex-lawyers and in some sections shamed and in some sections ashamed of the exclusion of friends of the law. Fill up the full quota of those dismissed with friends of prohibition. I trust that you will spurn the attempts of Curtis and Pepper and others to force you. Let them refuse to confirm your appointment if they dare. You can better afford to be turned down for that than to yield and will be doing your country probably the greatest service you have ever rendered. Such refusal on the part of the senate would shame the people as they have seldom been shamed and that is a thing greatly needed."

REVALUATION BILL FINALLY SIGNED BY VONHINDENBURG

Is So Complicated with Exceptions Litigation is Expected.

BERLIN, July 17. (By Associated Press)—President Von Hindenburg's signature of the much-debated revaluation bill passed by the reichstag Tuesday, generally is lauded by the left press, although the viewpoint of other political groups is that it is difficult to see how the president could have acted otherwise.

"The signing of the bill constitutes the conclusion of a great historical tragedy," says the Socialist Vorwaerts.

The signing of the bill took place late yesterday afternoon after the president had listened all day to the arguments of the cabinet and other members of the cabinet regarding the measure. As finally adopted the revaluation bill which apparently satisfies nobody is so complicated that few understand all its implications. For every exception, so much litigation is predicted.

Roughly stated, loans are to be revalued at 23 percent, both in the case of holders before July 2, 1920 and those who obtain their securities after that date. However, the revaluation is not to be effected until after Germany's reparations obligations have been squared.

SCOTT DOUBTS AUTHENTICITY OF TELEGRAM

Believes His Brother Would Have Given Up By Now.

CHICAGO, July 17. (By Associated Press)—Russell Scott, one-time Canadian financier, scolded from the cellars by a wail of grief from Governor Scott a few hours before he was to have been hanged today for the murder of a drug store clerk in a holdup, tonight was as skeptical as the authorities over the authenticity of a telegram that brought about the reprieve.

Scott and his brother, Robert, both were indicted for the murder of the drug clerk but Robert was never apprehended. The reprieve, the latest of many Scott has received, came after a telegram from Detroit signed Robert Scott and stating he had killed the clerk and would give himself up, had been received at the governor's office at Springfield.

Tonight, 24 hours after, the telegram was sent, not a word had been heard in Detroit, Chicago or anywhere else from Robert.

"I don't think it was a fake at first," Russell Scott said tonight, "but now I do, for I think if it had been sent by Bob he would have given himself up—he would have been here. For all I know, Bob may be in Africa. Still I don't know, it might have been from him."

The state's attorney's staff which had fought for more than a year to have Scott hanged, in its disbelief of the authenticity of the message.

"It was just a bit of strategy on the part of his friends," George Gorman, assistant state's attorney who prosecuted Scott said. "I think Russell's friends are sparing for enough time to get a commutation of sentence. In any case, Russell Scott was a party to the murder and must be punished accordingly. The state's attorney's office still contends that it was Russell and not Robert, who fired the fatal shot."

Other Messages

Meanwhile other messages purporting to give information which would save Scott from hanging one week from today, were received by the authorities and by the state's attorney. One was from a crippled father and Mrs. Catherine Scott, the condemned man's wife. The latter couple last night had given up hope and bade Scott what they thought was a last farewell before the reprieve came. One message was addressed to Mr. Gorman and asked him to stop the execution, stating that the writer knew all about the crime and would tell some day. It was not received until after the hour set for the hanging.

Another message sent to Scott himself from Detroit and signed James M. Ball, advised the condemned man to send his father to Detroit to obtain evidence that would help Russell. Another telegram received by Scott during the day was signed "Jim Lyman" and advised him that a reprieve had been granted "at 6 o'clock this morning," the hour set for his execution. It was sent from Oakland, Ill. No one here knew the signer.

Scott's father was reported to have received a second telegram signed Robert Scott and stating he was coming here to give him

amination could be conducted and "make a farce of your honor's opinion."

Arthur G. Hayes said that the case should have the right to argue before the court that the law is unreasonable. The attorney general suggested that the excluded evidence be put in substance, Darrow replying that he was willing to do that.

William Jennings Bryan entered the discussion with a question to the court if the witnesses were permitted to testify as experts for the information of the court if they would be subject to cross-examination.

Judge Raulston replied that the state would be given the opportunity to cross-examine if the witnesses went on the stand. This drew a statement from Darrow that the state had no such right.

Finally the court ruled that the defense might put its testimony in the form of affidavits, but if witnesses were used they would be cross examined.

"Then we will make statements of what we expect to prove," said Darrow. "Can we have the rest of the day to draft them?"

As Judge Raulston seemed to demur, Mr. Darrow asked that "Your Honor takes half a day to write an opinion," the judge interrupted, but the defense counsel spoke up again:

"We want to make statements here of what we expect to prove.
I do not understand why every request of the prosecution should meet with endless time and a bare suggestion of anything that is perfectly competent on our part should be immediately overruled."

"I hope you do not mean to reflect upon the court," said the judge.

"Well, Your Honor has the right to hope," said Darrow.
"I have a right to do something else, perhaps," suggested the judge.

Mr. Darrow's reply to this was "all right, all right."
The discussion of how long would be required for the preparation of the scientific statements continued and when it was finally decided that adjournment to Monday morning would be necessary, another debate developed. The second issue was if the statements were to be placed in the record or if defense permitted to state their proof.

Attorneys for the state insisted that the statements alone could be placed in the record. No decision was made on this point.
Judge Raulston announced that he would rule Monday morning.

CONGRESS PLANNED

Washington (AP)—Plans for a World Forestry Congress to be held in Rome, April 29 to May 5, 1926, were announced here today by the American Tree Association headed by Charles Lathrop Pack.
The Congress will be under the presidency of Professor Arrigo Serbelloni, Director of the Royal Higher Institute of Agriculture and Forestry of Florence. It will be sponsored by the International Institute of Agriculture, the Italian Government and the American Tree Association.

Objects of the congress, as outlined by Mr. Pack, will have direct relation to the economic necessities of every nation in the world.
"The congress will have as its complement," he said, "an important international exhibition of woodworking machinery and of forest products, which will be held at Milan. The organizing committee is anxious that this exhibition, in which manufacturers in the different countries are greatly interested, should contribute to a marked degree to a better acquaintance with the typical products of the participating countries, and at the same time give a useful impetus to international commercial relations."

Books and Bookfolk

Years Three Score

By W. D. WOOD

In the issue of July 11, the "Nation" celebrated the completion of thirty years of life and its varied activities. It is a notable history for whatever the journal is or is not, it has always been interesting and different.

Following close upon the end of the Civil War, the new nation began to look for a new direction. The "Nation" was one of the first to consider the new and to find a new direction for the new nation.

Seventh, sound and impartial criticism of books and works of art.

"The Nation" will not be the organ of any party or body. It will, on the contrary, make an earnest effort to bring to the discussion of political and social questions a really critical spirit and to wage war upon the vices of violence, exaggeration and misrepresentation.

From the first, candor, courage and independence were among the paper's outstanding traits. To which were added insight, incisiveness and uniformly good English not equaled by any of its contemporaries. In 1895 it was not easy to pass judgment on men or measures or books in "a really critical spirit," and the uncoiled passions of the Civil War made it next to impossible. So while the differences from week to week were welcomed and found acceptance among certain people, they were most unwelcome and met prompt rejection in some of the high places. Opposition was all the greater because of the high quality of the articles which aroused such sharp resentment. If they had been easier to refute, hostility to them might not have been so pronounced or so prolonged. By sheer force of ability the new weekly became and remained a journal of opinion to be taken into account and reckoned with.

The responsible agent in all this was Edwin Lawrence Godkin, founder and first editor. And in very truth, the "Nation" was Godkin, and Godkin was the "Nation." More than any of his predecessors or rivals in the newspaper field he became the foremost editor in America. On the title-page of its earliest bound volume it is described as "A Weekly Journal Devoted to Politics, Literature, Science and Art." Primarily it was and continued to be a commentator and interpreter of politics and literature, and was only incidentally concerned with science and art. Politics and literature were its breath of life, and became its soul. For a long series of years it was practically the only occupant of its chosen field, and even after rivals entered, its primacy was maintained.

Within a short time, a constituency was created unlike that of any existing paper, magazine or review. Such a journal of opinion appealed to people, having opinions, but while interesting and informing, it was not always convincing. By failure to dispel the predilections of some of its opinionated readers it paid the penalty of its own candor and courage. On its twentieth anniversary, advertising to this phase of the record, this comment was made:

"Many have found while sharing its opinions on most questions, its opinions on some too unpalatable for continued reading, and have dropped it. In fact, there is nothing more curious in newspaper history than this readiness of subscribers to close their ears to all subjects, even to a journal they have trusted for years, because on some one subject it happened to run counter to their convictions or prejudices. It is only to an editor that people say that a failure to agree with them on a single question deprives what he says on any question of all value."

"By far the most serious collision into which the paper was ever brought, with any considerable number of its readers occurred in 1876, when it denounced in unflattering terms the fraudulent proceedings in Louisiana by which Mr. Hayes was inducted into the presidency, and the official records subsequently in that most deplorable and delinquent enterprise. The Republican horror of Democratic rule was still so strong that many good people could hardly be brought to think anything fraudulent which kept the Democrats out of power, and looked on anybody who threw, or seemed to throw, any obstacle in the way of continued Republican ascendancy as little short of a public enemy. The "Nation" accordingly lost nearly 3,000 subscribers for refusing to believe that Mr. Hayes could honorably accept the presidency at the hands of the Louisiana and Florida Returning Boards." Thus for forecasting and declaring the verdict of history the "Nation" lost one-third of its subscription list.

After sixteen years of independent, and more or less precarious existence, the "Nation" passed to ownership by the "Evening Post."

THE BIBLE vs. EVOLUTION

While there is a world of books upon the subject of evolution in its various phases, the following will be found of more general interest, or more pertinent to the phase of the question at issue today. The first dozen will be found in the Jacksonville Public Library.

Charles Darwin, "The Descent of Man" (Appleton)
Thomas Huxley, "Man's Place in Nature" (Appleton)
Vernon Kellogg, "Evolution" (Appleton)
Joseph Le Conte, "Evolution and Its Relation to Religious Thought" (Appleton)
J. Y. and F. D. Bergen, "Development Theory" (brief statement for general readers)

H. W. Conn, "The Method of Evolution" (Putnam)
Thomas Dwight, "Thoughts of a Catholic Anatomist" (Longmans)

John Fiske, "Evolution and Religion" (Houghton, Mifflin)

A. W. McCann, "God—or Gorilla?"
S. C. Schmucker, "The Meaning of Evolution"

Edward Codd, "Story of Creation"
G. J. Romanes, "Darwin and After Darwin"

Sir Oliver Lodge, "Making of Man" (Doran)
Joseph McCabe, "A B C of Evolution" (Putnam)

Henry Fairchild Osborn, "Origin and Evolution of Life," and "The Earth Speaks to Bryan" (Scribner)

William Jennings Bryan, "The Menace of Darwinism"

John Merle Coulter, "Where Evolution and Religion Meet" (Macmillan)

Henry Higgins Lane, "Evolution and Christian Faith" (Princeton)

Shailer Mathews, "Contributions of Science to Religion" (Appleton)

and became its weekly addition. Established in 1891, the "Post" is the oldest daily in New York, and Henry Villard, its new owner in 1881, passed editorial control to Carl Schurz, Mr. Godkin and Horace White, the most notable combination of talent in the history of American journalism.

At first, Schurz was editor-in-chief, but on his retirement two years later Godkin became editor and son continued until shortly before his death in 1899. It was while Mr. Godkin and Horace White were devoting themselves and their energies to the "Post" that James Bryce said it was "decidedly the best paper printed in the English language."

In general, the change in ownership involved no reversal in direction or control, though there were slight changes in detail. Editorial direction of the "Nation" passed to Wendell Phillips Garrison, a member of its staff from the first, and who became Godkin's trusted associate and chief reliance. It was he who sponsored the paper on its literary side, and his diligence and influence gave its book reviews their unique and commanding place.

Godkin was still the governing mind, but the guiding hand was Garrison's. In politics the exigencies of daily journalism, and the fact that the editorials had first to meet the needs of the "Evening Post," may have made a shade of difference. But the presence on the working force of a man of Horace White's qualities was a distinct addition and must be taken into account. And after all, the changes were matters of little moment and served in no way to alter the identity or lessen the influence of the "Nation." With the equipment severely and untidily brought to its service by Godkin, Garrison and White, the best traditions naturally would be maintained and unimpaired.

But that three-score years have brought changes, it would be useless to question or deny. One has only to turn from reading the semi-centennial number to the perusal of the sixtieth anniversary issue to be made aware of differences of mode, tone and temper. The list of contributors in each is self-revealing. Measured by years, James Bryce, Henry James, Henry Holt, A. V. Dicey, W. C. Brownell, Gustav Pollak, Basil L. Gildersleeve and William Roscoe Thayer may not be far removed from Bernard Shaw, H. M. Monckton, Ramsey MacDonald, Edward Herriot, Sinclair Lewis, Oswald Garrison Villard, Zona Gale, and Carl Van Doren, but by any other measurement the two groups are worlds apart.

In 1915 Godkin and Garrison were no longer living, the spirit lived in their lineal successors. The "Evening Post" and the "Nation" were still linked together, the changes by death and otherwise were weakening the bonds, and the World War was causing new divergencies. The inevitable break which came in 1918 marked the passing of the old "Nation," and the coming of the new "Nation." Today Oswald Garrison Villard is the "Nation."

It has lost some of its old friends and gained a larger number of new adherents, at the same time holding a considerable body of long-time subscribers, with varying degrees of attachment and friendliness, who cannot or will not give it up. And now, as always, it is interesting—and different.

Rudyard Kipling has been given first in a recent competition to determine England's most popular authors. After him, the order of favorites was: Thomas Hardy, Hall Caine, Conan Doyle, H. G. Wells, Rider Haggard, Arnold Bennett, Ethel M. Dell, Joseph Conrad, W. L. Lock, G. K. Chesterton, and Ian Hay.

Say and Hearsay

What do you read—newspapers, magazines, or books? Not that I intend to reproach you here for the "daily" habit, because I have the habit myself. If I have only time for the paper, that is all I read. If I have extra time, I read poetry, or drama; sometimes a short story, more seldom a novel, because it requires too long a suspension of interest, and the installment habit is fatal to coherence.

But the newspaper is here to stay for awhile, and more than that it represents an effort to reduce everything in the way of intelligence to the common denominator of timeliness and one meal, or at most two, a day—and a balanced ration, understand, because there seems to be no sort of mental medium that can not be served after a certain style. No wonder you get tired of a newspaper just as you do the same restaurant day after day.

Above all nevertheless, the newspaper style is dominating everything else published, to the extent that even dramas—not to mention verse, which long ago was bulldozed into conformation adaptable to magazine type—has begun to take on the color of the medium in which our ideas move and have their being.

But what I meant to say was, that I have been reading essays of late. Takes a good deal of courage, you say? Yes, it does—the older essays, that is. But I don't mean the older ones. I mean modern ones that have come from the bath—newspaper plaid, you might say, with the least taint of didacticism.

However, to tell the truth, I like them, and begin to think that as yet there are things being published that deserve something more than a season's popularity. Of course, they ought to be published first in the newspapers or magazines—that is the law of progress. After that, in book form, if they show any signs of persistent vitality.

And yet I am not so sure that the book I have been reading—"The Peal of Bells," by Robert Lynd (Appleton)—has properly passed thru the newspaper ordeal. There seems to be no indication at hand, and no information on the covers to the effect that it has. Their brevity implies concessions to newspaper requirements, and so as to their prevailing lightness of style.

These concessions, of course, are recommendations to the reading public of today. The subjects are too—and timely enough for newspaper requirements, from "The Mouse: A Problem" on thru "Horses" and "In Defense of Patient Medicines" (no free advertising) and "Worry" and "The Quarrel" and "Farewell to Tolstoy," twenty-seven in all, and averaging only about four pages each.

Of course, these are not essays in the serious sense of the word. They are humorous, whimsical, sympathetic observation upon certain subjects that seem willing to lend themselves to such treatment. Some of them are like excerpts from a novel, letters, or sketches in dialect—anything to avoid stiff formality of the school or college type of composition. If it is true that they have not hitherto been published in some newspaper, it is not too late, and I would suggest that the process be reversed. Out of curiosity, I would like to see them appear in the daily columns, and assuredly they will reach a large class of appreciative readers that way—well-meaning readers who seldom buy or read books.

The word "essay" in reference to a composition for publication anywhere is almost obsolete nevertheless. At least, it has become a word of ill-repute, repellant and suggestive of dryness and verbosity, if not indirection and irrelevancy. As a specific name for a certain kind of writing in vogue a few generations ago, it still has vogue among the literary and more or less standing in college courses in English. The words "sketch" and "letter" with reference to what they denoted years ago are also approaching extinction.

The word "editorial" is rapidly losing its prestige, passing out of interest, if not out of existence. Even the phrase "feature story" is a little threadbare. Synthesis has a particular significance, and "short story" has lost its kick. "Book-review" we have with us yet, but it is burning the candle at both ends, and "interview"—unless cleverly disguised—is a sad device.

"Epigram" has come back to life—for awhile—and "joke" is still a serious proposition. That is, it is a serious proposition turning out the old ones with a new twist. But the life of the joke has been prolonged by being bootlegged into the cartoon field, and now two blades grow in the field where one languished before.

Our fiction must now be called "true stories," or we sniff at it, and our news must have the glamour of fiction, or it is stale, even when sold on the streets the day before it is supposed to appear.

Of course, these terms die by degrees, or rather by splits and jerks, and sometimes when the head is quiet, the tail is still quivering spasmodically in the air, as the case of "epigram" above mentioned.

GERMANS FIGHT FOR FRANCE IN MOROCCO

Berlin (AP)—One-half of the foreign legionnaires fighting on the side of France against Abd el Krim in Morocco are Germans, in the opinion of Meritt military experts. Not only is it untrue that Germans have come to the aid of the Moroccan chieftain, they say, but on the contrary France is being supported by about 12,000 to 15,000 German subjects enrolled in the foreign legion.

This rather startling fact is explained in the following manner: In article 179 of the Treaty of Versailles, Germany undertakes not to permit any of its subjects to enter the service of another power, except that it is specifically provided that this article shall not be applicable to the French foreign legion.

During 1922 and 1923, many German young men found themselves out of jobs. Others found the daily grist of Germany's reconstruction task too dull and unadventurous. They readily listened, it is said, to the arguments of French recruiting officers, who told them of comfortable wages, exciting service, and a career life in the French foreign legion.

In this way at least 15,000 young men enlisted in service for France, little thinking that they would soon be called upon to shed their blood on the battlefields of Morocco for a nation against which they fought only a decade and less previously.

WILL USE NEW SYSTEM FOR HIRING "EXTRAS"

NEW YORK, July 17. (By Associated Press)—Abolition of the present system of employing "extras" for the movies at Hollywood thru commercial agencies was announced today by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, in a telegram to the local offices of that organization. The action was taken on recommendation of the department of industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation, which recently completed an investigation of employment conditions in the movie metropolis.

"It is considered by everyone to be of the most constructive steps ever taken by the motion picture industry," said Mr. Hays. "It will automatically wipe out of existence all questionable employment agencies, make-up schools, schools for acting and other pretended agencies preying on a gullible public and giving nothing in return."

As a substitute, the producers will organize a central casting bureau which will register applicants without charge and at the same time will endeavor to decrease the surplus by shunting into other lines those who seem to be unsuited for the films.

The survey at Hollywood, according to the Sage foundation, showed a heavy excess of applicants over positions.

Dempsey Square With Boxing Commission

NEW YORK, July 17. (AP)—The heavyweight pugilistic horizon clouded for the past 22 months by the motionpicture and matrimonial activities of the champion, brightened today when Jack Dempsey appeared before the state athletic commission and formally accepted the challenge of Harry Wills, negro heavy-weighter. This action ends four years of strife to bring together the champion and his most persistent challenger.

The controversy which had become badly tangled since Jack Kearns, the commission's manager, ignored the commission's edict that Dempsey answer Wills' challenge, unraveled itself to the satisfaction of all today when Dempsey agreed to abide by the rules of the commission.

The commission agreed to make the pipe of peace with the king of the heavyweight division. It would sign for the match and post a forfeit binding him to its terms. Dempsey was instructed to sign for the match and appear before the commission next Tuesday to post the forfeit.

Dempsey, in referring to his interview with the commission, said:

"Commissioner Muldoon agrees with me that I should have a couple of warmup fights before taking on Wills. In all probability I'll either meet Bartley Madden at Michigan City, Indiana, Labor Day or Gene Tunney in New York before the outdoor season closes.

"When shown The Associated Press dispatch from Los Angeles quoting Kearns as saying that Dempsey would arrange to fight Wills, Dempsey smiled and said:

"Somebody got hot. The boy evidently lost his head."

NICHOLS PARK GOLF TOURNAMENT PLANNED

Committee Named to Arrange Flights for Annual Championship Play—No Entry Fee Will Be Charged

Plans are now being formulated for the annual Nichols park open golf championship play, the full details of which will be announced soon. The tournament will be open to all who have played on the Nichols park links this season and no entry fee will be charged. A committee composed of Leo Flood, chairman; Ed Tomlinson, Curtis Copp, Dr. Clampt, J. T. Flynn, James Pyatt and Ed Austin will begin immediate work on the rules and regulations to govern the play during the tournament.

The players will be divided into flights, the committee to arrange the members of each flight, with medals provided by the park board for the winners in each flight.

It is the intention to so arrange the different flights that all who have played golf during the season will find the sport of enough interest to them to enter and play out the matches to the finish.

As the tournament progresses the bulletin board at the park, and the local newspapers will announce the daily results.

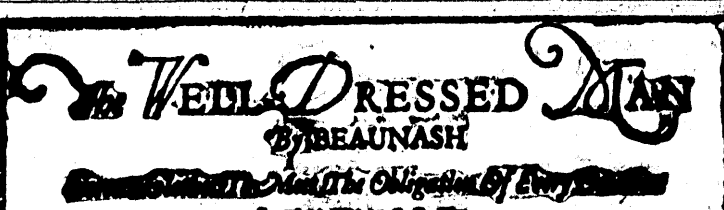

AUSTRALIA'S ENTRIES MAKE GOOD SHOWING

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 17. (By Associated Press)—Evidence amply that Australia's bid for the Davis cup is to be a real one this summer, was furnished at the Longwood Cricket Club's courts today when Gerald L. Patterson of Melbourne swept into the final round of the singles at the expense of Zeno Shimizu, captain of the Japanese team, 6-3, 6-2, 6-0. Patterson's opponent in the 33rd annual tournament final tomorrow will be Takekichi Harada, another Japanese who today ousted John B. Hawks of Australia 8-6, 2-6, 1-6, 9-7, 6-4.

Miss Helen Wills, national champion from Berkeley, Calif., though losing four successive games in her final match of the women's invitation singles, never lost her poise against Mrs. B. E. Cole II, of North Andover, former national indoor champion, and gained a final bracket by the margin of 6-4, 6-0. Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Delaware, fifth ranking player, eliminated Miss Eleanor Goss of New York 6-3, 6-0 and will oppose Mrs. Wills in the final tomorrow.

INDIANS CIVILIZED BY YANKEE HURLER

CLEVELAND, O., July 17. (By Associated Press)—New York defeated Cleveland in the final game of the series today 5 to 1. The Indians' wild hitting streak was stopped by Hoyt, who held them to eight scattered hits.

"Shorts" for the Sports

When "shorts" or knickers were in their knickerbockers, so to speak, they were uncomfortable and ungainly affairs, something midway between a bag and a balloon. The present worldwide vogue of knickers for the sports is due to the vast improvement effected in design and drape, as well as in the employment of lighter materials than the original thick, clumsy woolsens. Knickers are an evolution of the loose knee-breeches worn by the early Dutch settlers in America. They were called knickerbockers after the illustrations by George Cruikshank of Washington Irving's imaginary author of his facetious "History of New York," whom he named Diedrich Knickerbocker. So much for the historical derivation of knickers and now for their fashionable application.

You may wear knickers anywhere, of course, but the really proper place to wear them is on, near, to or from the golf links, for knickers belong to "Ye Goid Auld Game" almost as much as a niblick or a mashie does. Indeed, those who now foretell a decline in the vogue of knickers and the redemption of trousers by the English golfer, ascribe this possible change to the wearing of golf knickers promiscuously and incorrectly.

Besides the familiar heavy-weight knickers, they may be cut of linen, linen crash, wool crash, duck, silk, drill, corduroy, twillate, flannel, gabardine silk-and-linen and many other thin fabrics. Irish or Belgian linen in plaid patterns of the sort illustrated here are markedly in favor just now. These may fasten with buttons at the knee or they may have the elastic-knit knee which obviate the necessity of garters, which some men find so constraining.

"Plus-four" knickers, as they are popularly known, are not so much in fashion as formerly, because they are not becoming to many men. Hence, this type has been sensibly modified. You are well advised to select knickers in proportion to your height and build. Otherwise, your knickers are apt to click at the knees. Wear them in their proper place and for their proper purpose. Never look "out of the picture."

SPITBALLERS BATTLE, QUINN IS WINNER

Athletes Win Seventh Straight Game by Defeating White Sox 8 to 1—Faber Driven Off Mound in Eighth

CHICAGO, July 17. (By Associated Press)—Philadelphia made a clean sweep of the four-game series with Chicago today by taking the final game 8 to 1 and ran their winning streak to seven games. The game was a pitching duel between Red Faber and Jack Quinn, two veteran spitball pitchers, the latter getting credit for the second straight victory since joining the Athletics. Only three hits were made off Quinn prior to the time he left the game for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning. French took Quinn's place at that time and started a rally with a double which ultimately resulted in driving Faber off the mound and giving the league leaders six runs on as many hits.

WHEAT ADVANCES

NEAR DAY'S CLOSE

CHICAGO, July 17. (By Associated Press)—Flourish buying brought about a rapid late advance in wheat prices today. The closing conditions on an unofficial estimate that the July 1 government forecast of spring wheat production in the United States this season would be reduced possible 30,000,000 bushels owing to the recent hot wave. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 not higher, September $1.57 1/2 to $1.57 3/4 and December $1.58 1/2 to $1.58 3/4, with corn at 2c decline to 5c advance, oats unchanged to 5c higher and provid-ions varying from 7c off to 12c gain.

Inasmuch as 30,000,000 bushels cut in the July 1 wheat crop promised would be likely to put the country on a domestic price basis, enlarged speculative buying quickly developed. On the exchange, some transactions showed as much as 5c a bushel upturn in price compared with yesterday's finish and 6 1/2c bulge from today's lowest level. Some think of a reaction, however, ensued just at the last as a result of selling to realize profits. Bodeaux, rural owners of cash wheat were said to have sold heavily on the advance and the wheat decline to considerable late enlargement of hedging in future deliveries.

Predictions of renewed hot weather northwest taken by many traders as indicative of further increase to the spring wheat crop have the wheat market an upward trend at the outset today, but subsequent to the while the declining effect on prices was more or less neutralized by word from a leading crop expert that wheat in North and South Dakota was maturing a week earlier than usual and that damage by blackrust had been greatly exaggerated. There were also opinions current that the domestic spring wheat crop viewed as a whole and water out black-rust this season. All such factors were virtually lost sight of when late in the day a trade authority gave out the estimate of possibly 30,000,000 loss by heat.
Despite rains in part of the corn belt the corn market was responsive to wheat strength and crop damage reports from Nebraska. Corn trade was narrow.
Provisions averaged lower with hogs.

PALMYRA LAD DIES FROM BULLET WOUND

Melvin Bostie Succumbs to Pneumonia and Rifle Ball in Abdomen—Where He Got Ammunition Is a Mystery

Melvin Lee Bostie, 10 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lefroy Bostie of Palmyra, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Passavant hospital as the result of a wound from a rifle bullet accidentally inflicted last Wednesday afternoon. At an inquest held last night at the Gillham funeral home, the coroner's jury gave the verdict that the lad came to his death "from an accidental wound in the right side of the abdomen, being inflicted by a rifle bullet, together with pneumonia."

The lad was brought to the hospital here late Wednesday evening by Dr. D. T. Doan of Palmyra. Dr. Carl E. Black, who took charge of the case, testified at the inquest that the lad was developing an active case of pneumonia and that this was the direct cause of his death. The bullet wound was of course a contributory cause and the lad might have survived either the disease or the wound, but was unable to withstand both of them.

GOV. BROUGH SEES THIS AS SERVICE AGE

In Address to Rotary Club Compares U. S. Conditions with Those in Other Countries.

When Governor Brough of Arkansas spoke before the Jacksonville Rotary club at the Jackson at the Ponce de Leon hotel, it was to talk something about the greatness of the nation and its relation to service such as Rotary and similar clubs emphasize. The speaker was introduced by President Earl Spink and before his address there was mass singing under the leadership of H. M. Andre, Dr. E. L. Hill, J. W. Conover and Cass Haman.

The guests of the day were: Charles Fiedler, Springfield; C. W. Turner, Virden; Palmer Schiele, Chicago; Dr. G. A. Norbury, Otis Boston, Francis Thurman, Al Fraser and Fred Davis, Jacksonville.

Governor Brough is on terms of friendship with many Jacksonville people. His first visit here at the chautauqua several years ago, he first spoke yesterday of the wealth of the United States as $265,000,000,000 by comparison with the world wealth of $700,000,000,000. Then he quoted Secretary Mellon's statement that the wealth of the United States divided up according to population, would give each person $3,000 and that in other nations wealth which would give individual property worth of more than $2.2.

Comparative Values
Then Governor Brough spoke of the railroad property in the world which has a valuation of $285,000,000,000, and said that three-fourths of this traffic is in the United States. He phrased too that within a comparatively few years the United States would be doing an immense business all over the world thru its merchant marine. Wealth, he said, amounts to little except as service and recalled how the great Andrew Carnegie was twisted when he said that it was a sin for a man to die rich. There was a change of sentiment along this line, Gov. Brough said, and wealthy men and nations have come into an understanding that accumulated dollars bring them responsibility. Then he talked of the willingness of wealthy individuals and groups to spend money for the public good.

He commented upon the expenditures made in Jacksonville to recover from the damage done by the disastrous storm of last December. Then running thru the centuries, Governor Brough said that in the eighteenth century the great struggle of mankind was for liberty, and in the nineteenth for union and federation. He voiced his belief that in this, the twentieth century, the tendency and goal is for service, to make the world really safe for democracy, because of the service given both by individuals and by governments.

JURY FINDS DEATH OF TRAINMAN ACCIDENTAL

Inquiry Conducted Into Demise of Edward Ellickson—Yesterday Morning by Coroner Young

At an inquest conducted yesterday morning at the Gillham funeral home, by Coroner C. S. Young into the death of Edward Ellickson of Beardstown, the jury found that death was due to "shock from injuries received on July 16, 1925, from being accidentally caught between way car and tender of Engine No. 6091 while in the performance of his duties as brakeman for the C. & D. railroad company."

The jurors were Ralph Wilber, foreman; J. Clark Rothwell, M. M. Crum, J. M. Summers, J. W. Lazebny and C. P. Siegfried.

Testimony at the inquest was given by three members of the train crew, H. M. VanHorn, conductor on the extra; W. Haberman, engineer and Thomas E. Crafton, fireman, all of Beardstown.

Practically the same story was told by the witnesses to the accident, in which Conductor Liscom was also injured, though not seriously. The long freight train was being assisted up the grade at Beardstown by two helper engines, when the couplings gave way about 20 cars back from the front engine. This set the air brakes and caused one of the helper engines to telescope the way car, Brakeman Ellickson and the conductor were standing on the platform of the way car and were crushed by the wreckage.

Dr. Carl E. Black, who attended Ellickson at Passavant hospital testified as to the nature of the injuries. The man's legs and feet were crushed and he was hurt internally. He lived but a short time after reaching the hospital.

Members of the Jacksonville post of the American Legion unloaded a cartload of bricks in record time last night. The car which contained a thousand more bricks than the one unloaded recently by the veterans was emptied in an hour less time than was true of the car that preceded that of last night.

Ten men from the Lukeman Motor company, a number of them who are not veterans of the World War, assisted in unloading the bricks. PAINT EXTERIOR OF ELI BRIDGE PLANT

Building and Grounds Beautified—People Make Good Use of Big Slide Till Small Hours of Morning.

Workmen at the Eli Bridge Company's plant have been busy the past few days redecorating the exterior of the factory and office building and whitewashing the trees on the grounds. New awnings have been placed at the office windows, and the sills and cornices are being painted white, giving the factory an attractive appearance. The street in front of the plant is kept in excellent shape, and the uniform decoration of the long row of tree trunks give it the appearance of a pretty drive.

The giant slide which the company has erected on the lot west of the plant is being freely used by the people of the neighborhood. Recently the slide was in use until 1 o'clock in the morning, being enjoyed by children and grown folks alike.

The slide is an experimental affair and is being tested to secure the right adjustments and angles to obtain the best thrills. Changes in the inclines and curves are made at intervals and the people who use the slide make the tests in plenty. Sacks are used as pads in the long trough, or if a lad isn't lucky enough to possess a sack, he may put his cap under him and hit the toboggan sitting on his head gear.

The start of the slide is 35 feet above the ground. Those who take the entire trip come to rest on a platform after shooting thru a depression and ascending a curve.
